We believe the Handbook will be an invaluable tool for Central Authorities, family lawyers and judges in understanding the Convention's practical application.

As you know New Zealand is currently considering the case for accession to the Convention. The draft Handbook was extremely useful in not only confirming many of our understandings about how the Convention works in practice but as a source of valuable additional information to assist with our on-going analysis. The handbook is a useful reference tool though we question some of the examples and interpretation of the application of the 1996 Convention. As indicated in New Zealand's response to the questionnaire on the 1980 convention, we support the discussion at the upcoming Special Commission meeting of what constitutes a 'protective measure' in terms of the 1980 and 1996 conventions.
